Democrat Policies

A Sunday AP article indicated statewide Republican registration is down to 24% (“Dems gain voter edge in House fights”). No party preference is gaining.

For seven consecutive years, California has lost population, with 691,000 leaving and 501,000 arriving, a net loss of 190,000 in 2019. Seventy-one percent say the high cost of housing is driving them away, 58% indicate high taxes, and 41% say the political culture motivates them to leave.

The supermajority of Democratss means that its candidates gets elected and policies approved. In education, our state is now No. 38 in the country; we’re No. 1 in poverty. Fifty-three percent of the entire country’s homeless live here; cost of living is 3rd highest after Hawaii and Washington D.C.; and 25% of the country’s illegal immigrants live here.

Do you like the Dem policies that give us these grim statistics? That the bullet train is going nowhere and costing millions and months over contract? That no more charter schools are permitted? That our sanctuary state cares more about the illegal immigrant criminals than it cares about its own citizens? Open borders anyone? Free stuff? Nothing will change when you keep voting in the same politicians. It’s insanity.
